Chapter 9 Institutions

Chapter Nine institutions

The Constitution guarantees the independence, impartiality, dignity and effectiveness of this institution as indispensable requirements for the proper execution of its mandate. The obligation to keep alive these essential requirements for functionality and the necessary impact is placed on organs of State.

Section 181(3) Other organs of state, through legislative and other measures, must assist and protect these institutions to ensure the independence, impartiality, dignity and effectiveness of these institutions.

Constitution Court ruling –

Chapter Nine institutions was created to “strengthen constitutional democracy in the Republic”. To achieve this crucial objective, it is required to be independent and subject only to the Constitution and the law. It is demanded of it, as is the case with other sister institutions, to be impartial and to exercise the powers and functions vested in it without fear, favour or prejudice.

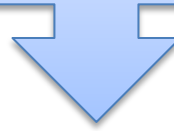

RISK

“The courts alone, and not public officials, are the arbiters of legality.”

Therefore legislator’s and oversight bodies can not challenge findings other than in court

Where can the Alumni make a difference?

You are part of the growing number of former AGSA staff members who can play a prominent role in the broader accountability processes in the public sector, structures of governance, the accounting and auditing profession and the South African economy.

To keep members abreast of the strategy and aspirations of the office to empower them as the ambassadors for AGSA

Networking platforms to stay in touch with other former employees in order to share best practices

Make a difference in your sphere of influence to promote transparency and accountability thereby influencing positive change
